

Do the hard thing
ONCE.

Let it pay you back all year.

Daniel Abrahamson · ▶ STREAMSTAGE

Teacher.

The thing on the sign.

Studio owner.

Which quietly made you...

A full-time content creator.

Nights, weekends, every recital.

You're getting paid for one.

Daniel Abrahamson
shooting a recital

Daniel Abrahamson

STREAMSTAGE

Videographer.

Studios, recitals, competitions.

All year long.

Why one 30-second ad becomes six exports.

OPEN GATE

Shoot the whole square

Open gate records the full sensor — roughly 4:3, like a 90s TV. From that one file you can pull a full-resolution 9:16 and a full-resolution 16:9. You frame it once and decide the shape later.

WHAT CROPPING COSTS

4K in, about 720 out

Shoot 16:9, then crop to vertical, and you keep only the narrow strip of pixels in the middle. You shot 4K and you are delivering something closer to 720. It was never a resolution problem — it is a framing problem.

SIX DELIVERIES

Same 30 seconds, six exports

Feed, story and reel, desktop, mobile, YouTube, paid. Different shapes, different safe areas, different places the caption can sit. One edit, six renders — that is the actual work nobody warns you about.

CODECS

H.264 vs H.265

H.264 plays on everything. H.265 is roughly half the file at the same quality and still is not universal — some phones and some older machines will not decode it. If you are handing a file to a stranger, send H.264.

And the specs change roughly every six months. That is not you failing to keep up — that is the job.

Camera settings, short version.

FRAME RATE

30 fps

24 is the movie-theatre look. 60 is more frames in a second — that is not the same as more quality. 30 is the one that survives every platform.

RESOLUTION

4K

Resolution is your crop budget. Shoot bigger than you deliver and you can reframe, punch in, and cut a vertical later without paying for it.

EXPOSURE

Everything on auto

Auto white balance, auto ISO, auto f-stop. A correctly exposed auto shot beats a manual one you got wrong, and you are there to run a studio, not to chase a light meter.

VARIETY

Vary the focal length

Wide, close, from the floor, at the toe. Every shot taken from the same doorway at shoulder height is exactly what makes UGC look like UGC.

ON A PHONE

Zoom with your feet

A phone has one lens worth using. Move closer instead of pinching — pinching just throws away pixels you already paid for.

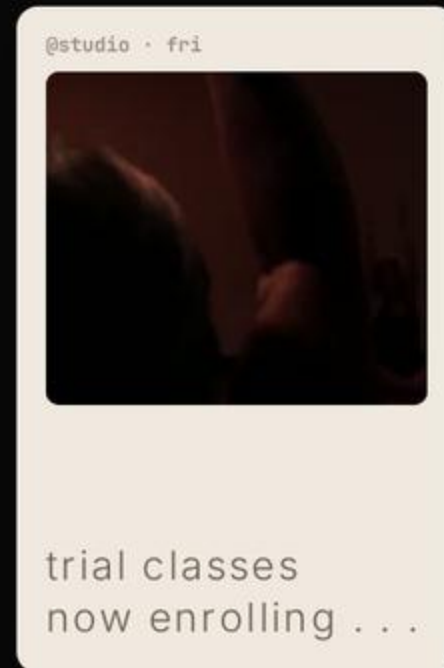

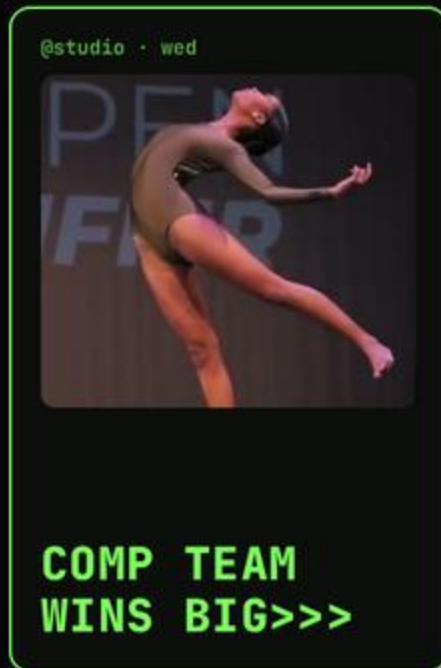

Vertical or landscape? If you cannot shoot open gate, shoot a mix. Short answer: do both.

How are you making video right now?

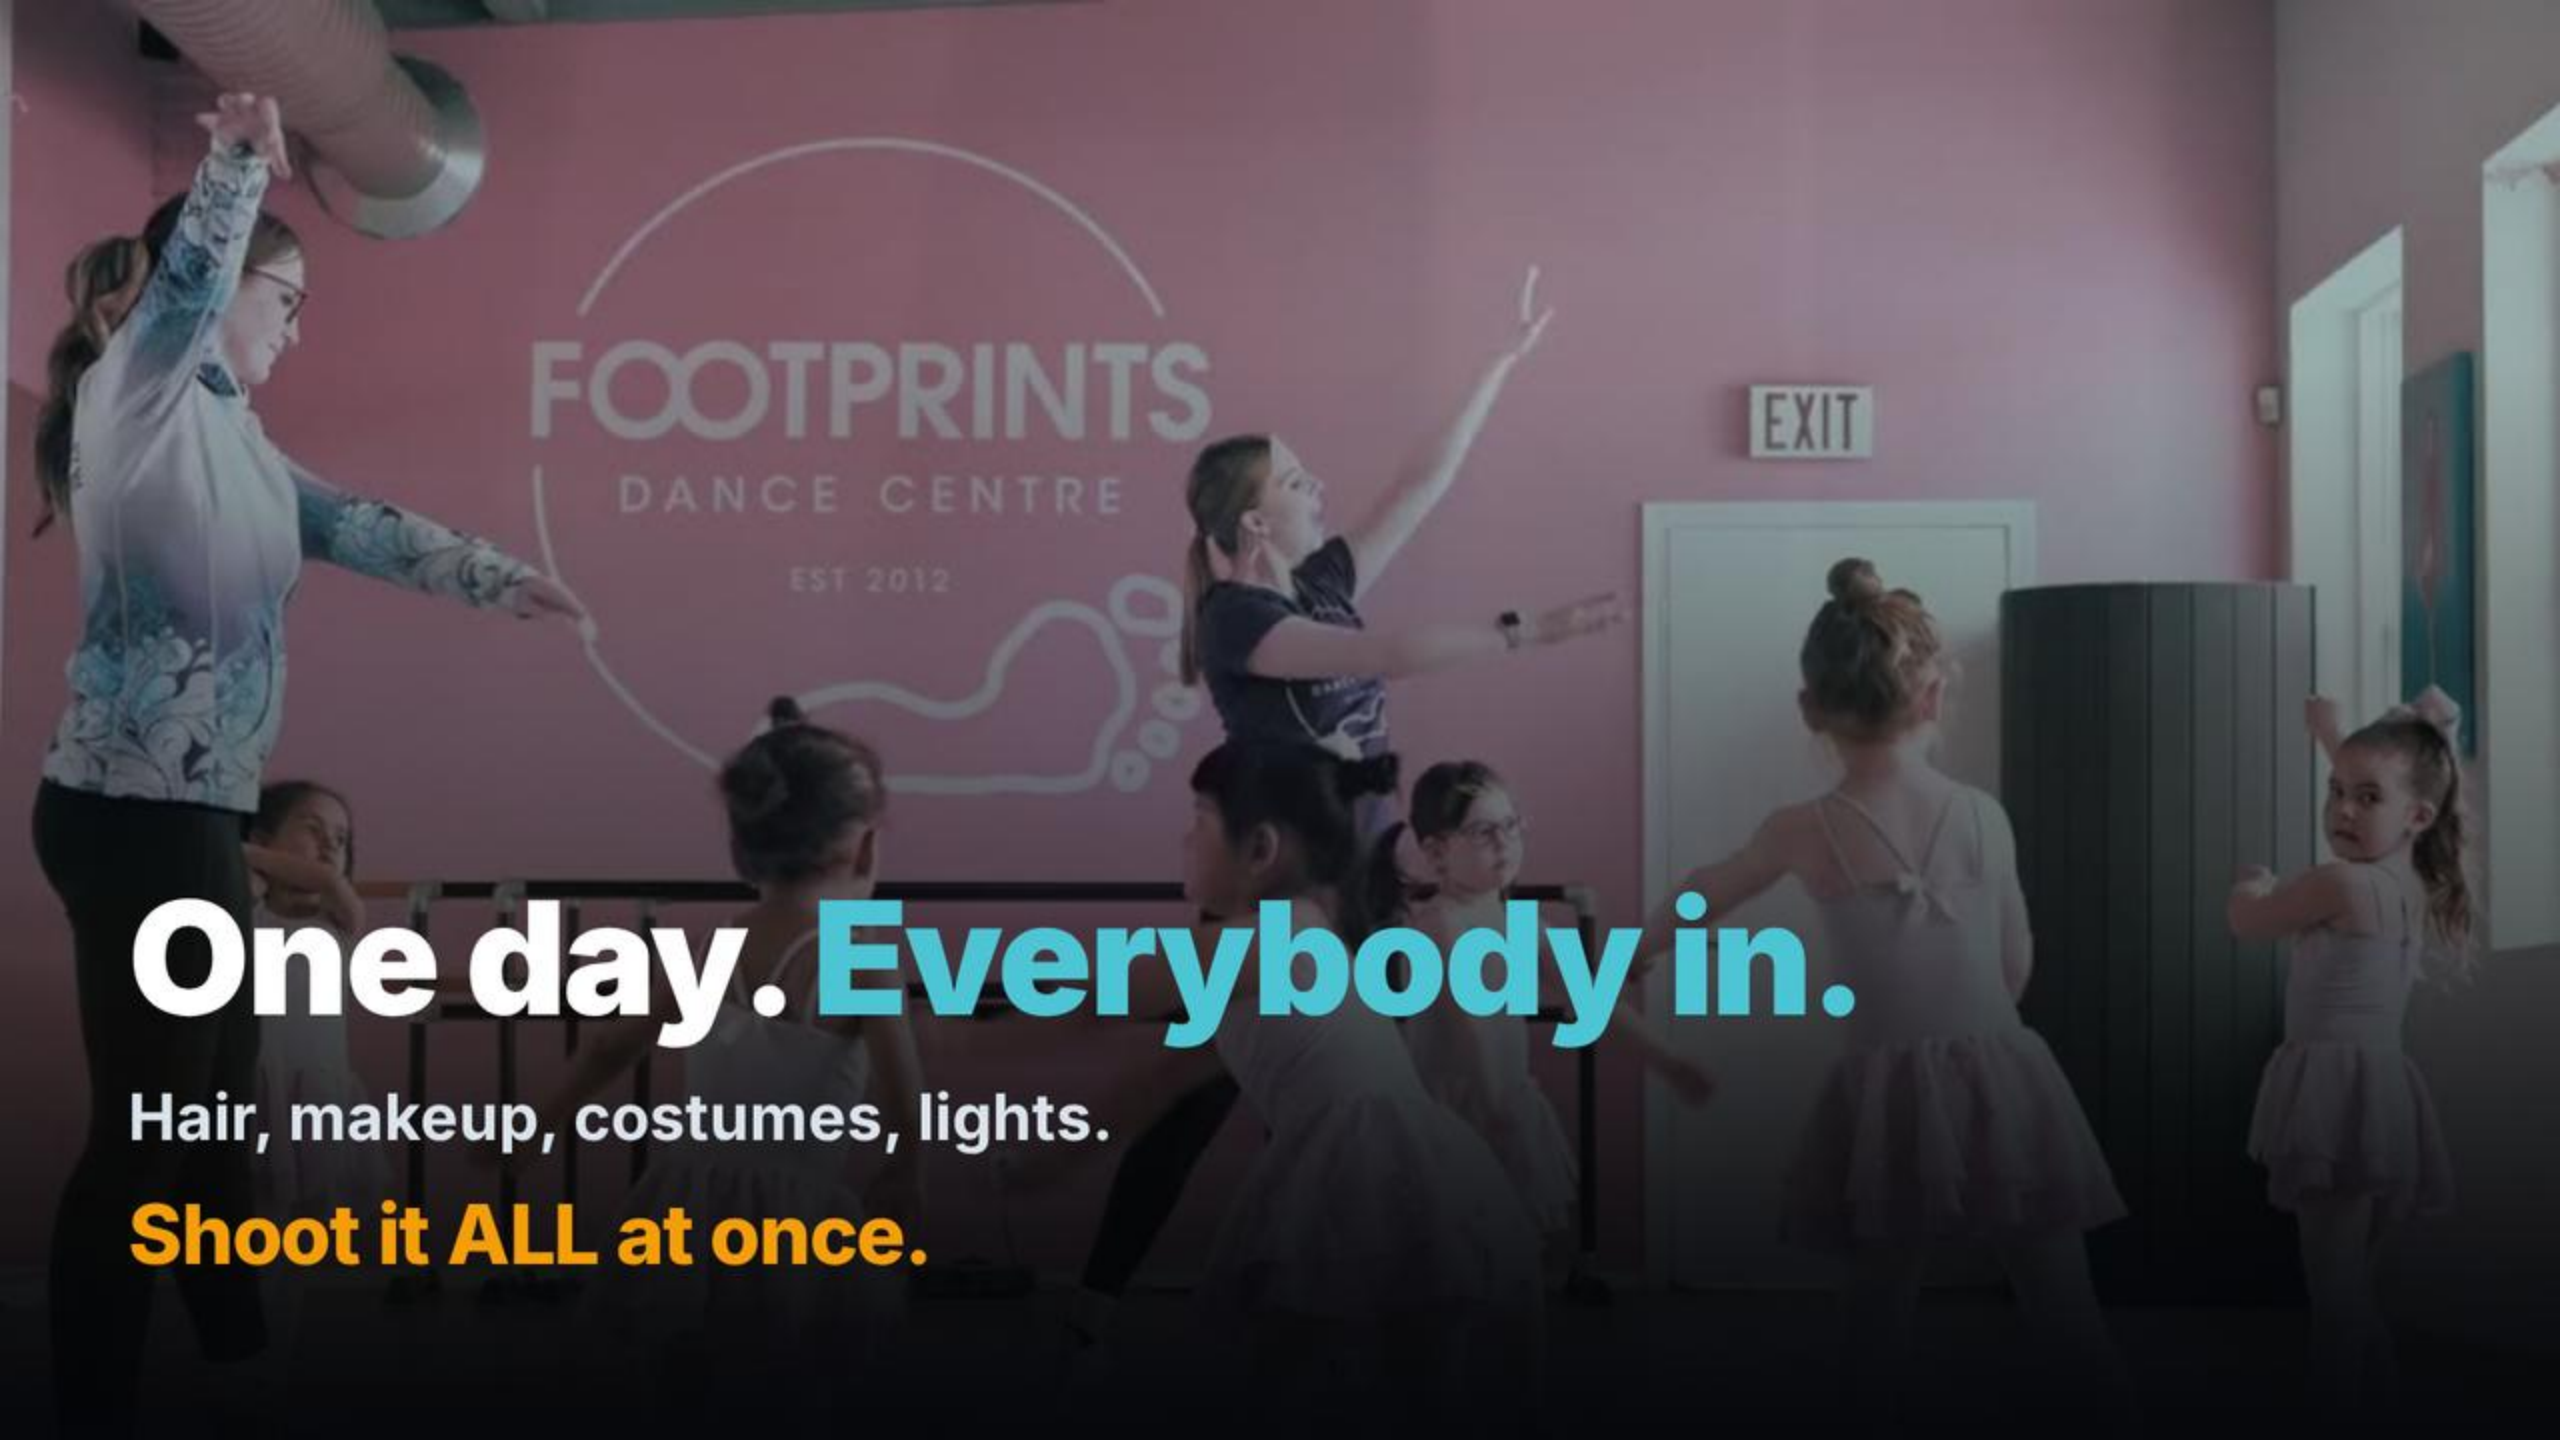

Phone in the lobby? Hired for the gala? Niece with a ring light?

Shoot. Edit. Post. Repeat.

Piecemeal looks piecemeal.

Three studios. Three people. Never met.

FOOTPRINTS
DANCE CENTRE

EST. 2012

EXIT

One day. Everybody in.

Hair, makeup, costumes, lights.

Shoot it ALL at once.

Four stations.

01

Interview / story

the heart — people doing people things

02

Selfie studio

fast, shareable — dancers make their own 03

Routines

the polished stuff — the brand reel

04

Extra angles

every device = a focal length · drone · GoPro

ALL FOUR Story · Selfie · Routines · Extra angles

CSOD

KMSD

WSDY

EDP

DIS · vertical

Kiosk reel

Next >

▶ Homepage story video

▶ Living background video

▶ Recital + competition reels

▶ Dozens of social cuts, scheduled

One morning in. Twelve months of posts out.

Ask it, then argue the opposite.

THE POLITE VERSION

"What do you love about [Studio]?"

"It's great. Everyone's really nice."

THE PROVOKE

"What do you love about [Studio]? Is it a really fun place — or is everybody pretty miserable?"

"Oh no — my daughter cries when the season ends."

Cut the top and tail.

They warm up in the first sentence and wrap up in the last. All the good stuff's in the middle.

Nobody represents your culture like you do.

You are the only one who feels the way you do about it

Your teachers can describe the culture. You are the one who has it. A parent can hear the difference in about four seconds.

Hormozi's version

An owner's job in the mid-2020s is to be the one talking on camera, and to hire out almost everything else. Most studio owners do the exact opposite.

You don't interview yourself

Hand somebody the five questions and sit in the chair. Being asked is what makes it sound like a person instead of an ad.

STUDIO OWNER • ON CAMERA

Most owners won't do it. That is exactly why it works.

Don't just run it. Charge for it.

01

Make it a workshop

"Dancing on Camera Day." How to relate to a camera — and how to ignore one. That is a real skill and it is not on your timetable anywhere else.

a class they sign up for, not a day you beg them to attend

02

Teach the other half too

White balance, aperture, shutter, ISO. Some of your dancers want media, not just dance — give them the day where they find that out.

the kid who runs your socials next season is in that room

03

The fee funds the shoot

Per dancer, collected like any other class. The day pays for the camera before a single clip is cut — whether that camera is mine or yours.

the content day stops being a cost line

You end the day with the hero video. They end the day with a skill.

What audiences are choosing to watch.

01

Mic'd-up class

Corrections, effort, jokes, breath — the lesson as it actually sounds.

access to the real experience

02

Backstage POV

Cues, nerves, rituals, costume checks, the entrance into light.

the threshold before the stage

03

Day in the life

Give the day a question: can we get 40 dancers ready before doors?

the studio gets a protagonist

04

Correction → breakthrough

Attempt, note, second attempt, payoff. Story structure for free.

proves teaching instead of claiming it

05

Backstage interviews

Five prompts, asked of everyone. One station, dozens of posts.

people, not just performances

One recital clip. Nine posts.

Same footage.

×9

You need both.

PRO FOOTAGE

the well you draw from all year

CUT · CAPTION · REMIX

reel

vertical

teaser

story

quote

promo

recap

UGC

A 30-sec edit can eat 2-4 hrs of your night.

Shoot for the version of this five years from now.

SEPTEMBER → JANUARY → MAY

One dancer. One skill. Three clips.

Pick somebody going from a double to a triple this season. Film every attempt. At the end of the year you have September, January and May — and that is a whole story you did not have to write.

correction → breakthrough, stretched over a season

EVERY JUNE

Interview the graduating class

Same questions, everyone, one afternoon. Your most evangelical dancers, on the way out the door, saying what the studio was. That is a film every single year, forever.

it feeds the hero video too — repurpose it

FIVE YEARS FROM NOW

The dancer profile nobody else can make

The eight-year-old in your Tuesday class graduates with a folder: competition footage, a first recital, five interviews. You cannot shoot 2026 in 2031.

the archive is the product

Repurpose. Repurpose. Repurpose.

Every one of these is free — and impossible — unless the footage already exists.

Your recital is next season's recruiting film.

Interview the parents — on the night

Everyone is there and everyone is dressed up. "Are you nervous?" "How do you think it's going to go?" Five prompts, everyone gets the same ones.

Shoot the room, not just the stage

Applause, the reunion in the hallway, a kid finding their family. That is the part that sells.

Keep the routines

Multicam means you can pull a clean 20 seconds of any number, months later.

Cut it into the registration film

Runs all summer. Answers "what is it actually like?" before a parent ever calls.

One night of footage. A whole registration season.

Shoot it like a show, not like a parent.

01

The locked wide

Never stops rolling. This is the safety master — and the version that survives if anything else fails.

02

The cut angle

Same moment, closer. Multicam is what lets you pull a clean twenty seconds of any routine, months later.

03

Faces

A recital with no faces in it is a recording. Somebody has to be close enough to see the kid land it.

04

The room

Applause, the lobby, the reunion in the hallway. Vertical grabbed on purpose — not cropped out of the wide later.

Getting it to every family.

THE PAIN

"When do we get it?"

Name the delivery date before show day and hold it. A recital video that lands in September is a recital video nobody watches.

THE PAIN

Getting it to all of them

One permanent link per family, not a USB pile, not a folder someone has to be reminded about four times.

THE PAIN

Quality that survives a phone

Grandparents watch on a tablet. Parents watch on a phone in a parking lot. It has to look and sound right on both.

THE PAIN

The same person next year

A different videographer every season means a different look every season — and starting the whole conversation over.

THE FIX

Decide all four before the show, not after it

Delivery date, how families receive it, what they can download, and who is shooting it next year. Every one of those is a conversation you can have in August. That is most of what the checklist at the end is for.

The recital video that pays for itself.

1 We charge you a media fee per dancer

Not per routine, not a flat day rate. It scales with your enrolment, so a big show and a small show are both fair — and it is the only shape that lets step 3 work.

2 You charge families per dancer

One flat amount, collected at registration with everything else. Families understand it — it is the same idea as a costume fee.

3 You make the margin

No revenue share. No percentage split. No platform fee. Whatever you set above our rate stays with the studio — and you get that in writing.

What families pay

$\text{your media fee} \times \text{every dancer}$

What it costs you

$\text{our rate} \times \text{every dancer}$

THE DIFFERENCE

stays with the studio

Where you set the parent-facing number is your call. Real rates depend on studio size and which services you book — that belongs in a quote, from whoever you hire, not on a slide.

What to require, whoever shoots it.

WHAT IT HAS TO INCLUDE

- ▶ Multi-camera crew and operators on the night
- ▶ Audio taken off the house board, plus a room mic
- ▶ Livestream for the family who cannot be in the room
- ▶ Titles: studio, show, date, routine names spelled right
- ▶ Editing and post — every routine, not just the finale
- ▶ Delivery to every family, on a permanent link
- ▶ Equipment, insurance, and the archive master

WHAT YOU SUPPLY

- ▶ A clear sightline to the stage
- ▶ Access to the venue's audio
- ▶ The running order, spelled correctly
- ▶ Your media fee number

Recital video, livestream, or both.
That is the whole ask.

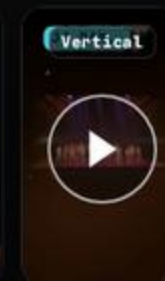

Hand this to your videographer.

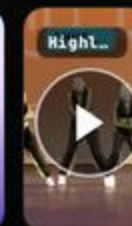

streamstage.live/checklist#videographer

This is the well.

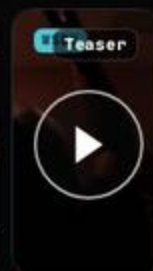

RECITAL REELS — THE SHOW, CUT FOR THE FEED

FULL STUDIO PROMOS — THE ONE-MINUTE BRAND FILM

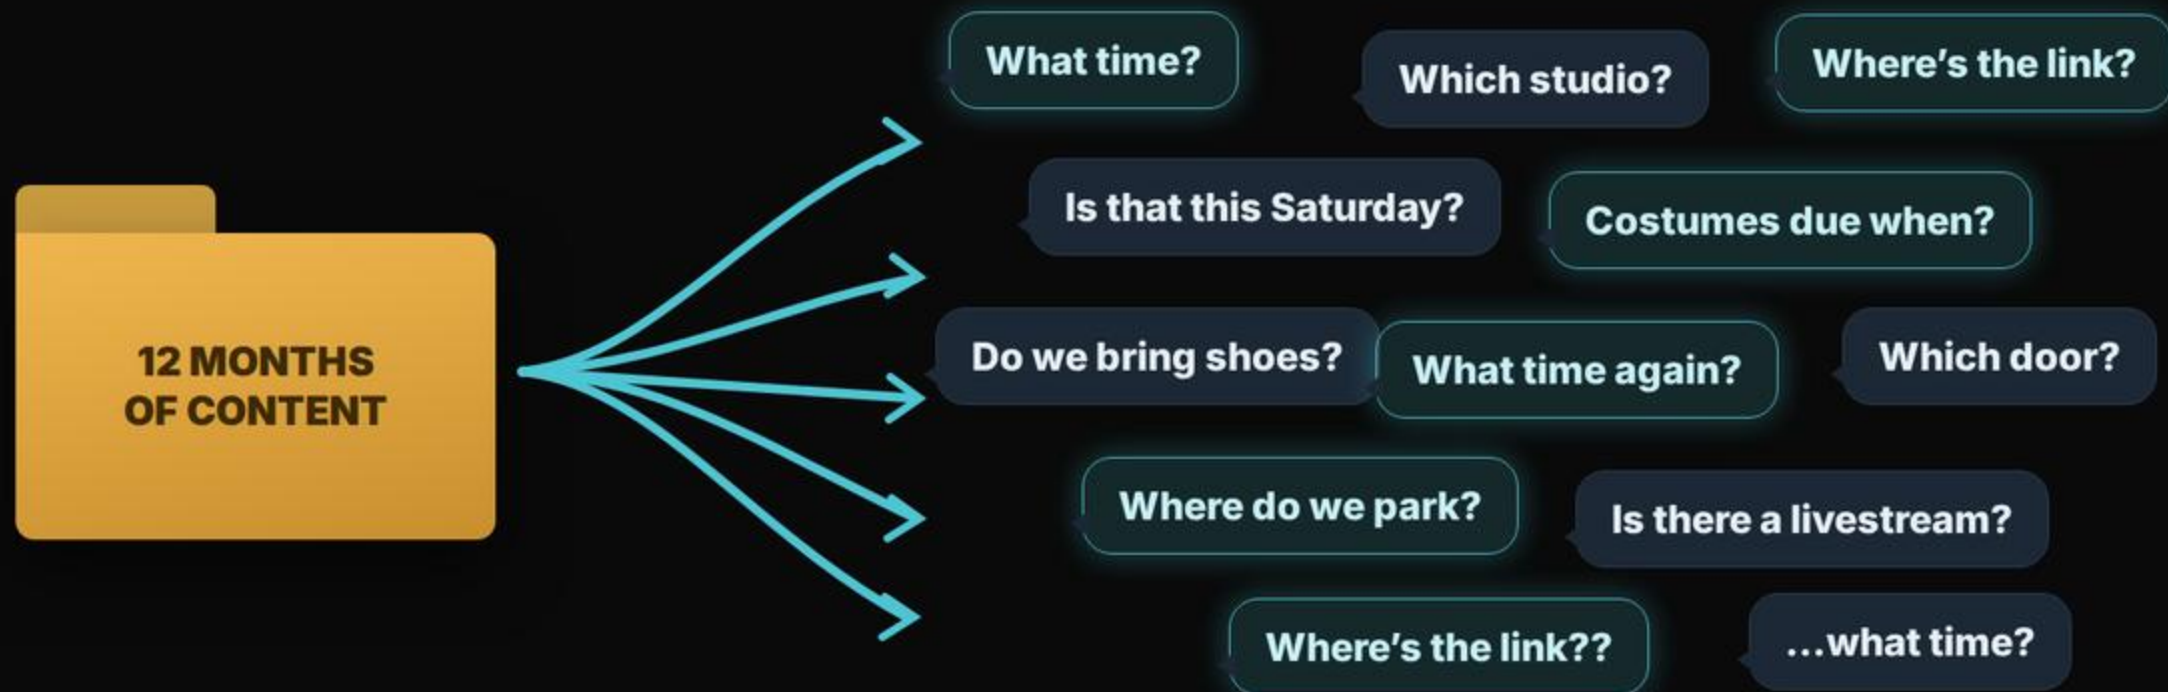

VERTICAL + SOCIAL CUTS — SAME DAY, SAME FOOTAGE

What's the video you keep meaning to make...
...and never do?

A year of content in a folder.

Who sends it out? Who answers the 40 parents who reply?

We spent an hour on that yesterday.

Short version at the booth – no session required.

StudioSage.

Your studio emails go in. Parents text a phone number.
It answers them, out of your own words.

It came out of a session like this one. Somebody answered "what hurts the most?" with "I email every answer to every family, and then they text me a question from the email."

The whole demo was yesterday's AI talk. There's a code for it on the next slide.

StudioSage

AI ASSISTANT FOR DANCE STUDIOS

Your emails in. Your parents answered.

Running a dance studio means answering

Four studios, one weekend.

1 October 2–5

One content day per studio, booked inside that weekend.

2 Four studios

Four of you book it and the weekend is full — that is what makes the trip work.

3 Travel is on me

My travel cost comes out of all four quotes. You pay for the shoot day, not for getting me to Alberta.

I am in Ontario. This is the weekend I am already coming west — after that it is a flight on your invoice.

OCT 2 3 4 5

1

STUDIO

2

STUDIO

3

STUDIO

4

STUDIO

Do the hard thing once. Let it pay you back all year.

One content day → twelve months of video.

1 Take the checklist. It's free.

Run the day yourself — or hand Part four to whoever you hire —
streamstage.live/checklist

2 Let the robot answer the parents.

StudioSage works from anywhere — studiosage.ai

3 Local team shoots, we deliver.

Come find me and we'll see if it makes sense —
streamstage.live/book

streamstage.live/checklist
FREE RECITAL VIDEO + LIVESTREAM
CHECKLIST

studiosage.ai

THE AI FRONT DESK

streamstage.live/book

LOCAL TEAM SHOOTS, WE DELIVER